

German Army Defense of Berlin World War II , Battle of Berlin

Wilhelm Willemer, Oberst a. D., Project Director

Copyright © 2006, Breaker McCoy, Editor

This book is copyright protected and may not be reproduced in part or whole, or sold, without the express written consent from the author of this book. All Rights Reserved.

www.quikmaneuvers.com

Table of Contents: 8 Chapters, 1 Appendix

Editor's Introduction

Foreword

Chapters

1. Introduction

2. The Various Viewpoints

- I. General
- II. Hitler
- III. The Army High Command
- IV. Army Group Vistula
- V. Summary

3. Organizational Planning

- I. General

- II. Military Agencies Taking Part in the Defense
- III. Authority of the Individual Military Agencies
- IV. Civil Agencies
- V. The Command System
- VI. Summary

4. The Defense Positions

- I. General
- II. The Individual Positions
- III. Plans for Demolitions
- IV. Buildup of Signal Communications
- V. Summary

5. Planning for the Defense Forces

- I. General
- II. Permanent Local Forces
- III. The LVI Panzer Corps
- IV. Flying Units
- V. Summary

6. Supply

- I. Ammunition
- II. Gasoline
- III. Food
- IV. Water

7. Measures on Behalf of Civilian Population

8. Concluding Observations

Appendix

A Short Account of Combat Operations

- I. Fighting to the East of Berlin (16 - 22 April 1945)
- II. Fighting In and Around Berlin (23 - 30 April 1945)
- III. The Relief Attacks (24 - 29 April 1945)
- IV. Engagements in Berlin after 30 April and the Final Surrender