

Shadow War, Russia

German Counterintelligence on the Eastern Front (1941-44)

Copyright © 2006, Breaker McCoy, Editor

This book is copyright protected and may not be reproduced in part or whole, or sold, without the express written consent from the author of this book. All Rights Reserved

www.quikmaneuvers.com

Table of Contents, 7 chapters

Introduction

Chapter 1. German Counterintelligence Agencies

- I. General
- II. The Abwehr
- III. The AST (Intelligence Station)
- IV. The Secret Field Police
- V. The SS Security Service

Chapter 2. Control Measures in German-Occupied Territories

- I. General
- II. Administrative Organizations
- III. Military Organizations

Chapter 3. The Abwehr in the Field

- I. Organizational Structure
- II. The Residenturas
- III. Missions
- IV. German Personnel
- V. Agent Personnel
- VI. Equipment and Supplies
- VII. Reports
- VIII. Training of Agents
- IX. Cover Stories
- X. Interrogation
- XI. Contact with other German Agencies

Chapter 4. German Experience with Russian Agents

- I. German Pre-War Attempts at Establishing Agent Networks
- II. Émigrés as Agents
- III. Methods of Recruiting
- IV. Contracts
- V. Categories of Prospective Agents
- VI. Welfare of Agents

Chapter 5. German Counterintelligence Activities in the Russian Theater

- I. Objectives
- II. Expansion of Objectives
- III. German Counterintelligence Activities in Anti-Soviet Units
- IV. Growth of German Counterintelligence Units
- V. Organization of Espionage Networks
- VI. Exposure of Soviet Agents
- VII. Employment Of Renegade Agents

Chapter 6. Soviet Counterintelligence Activities in the German-Occupied Areas

- I. German Characteristics
- II. Sabotage
- III. The Use of Children as Agents
- IV. Documentation of Agents
- V. Reestablishment of Contact

- VI. Photographic Studies as Espionage Centers
- VII. Organization of SMERSH Units
- VIII. Terrorism in the Towns
- IX. Development of Partisan Intelligence

Chapter 7. Summary

- I. Political and Economic Factors Affecting Abwehr Operations
- II. Breakdown in Control
- III. Factors Contributing to the Defeat of Abwehr Operations
- IV. Conclusions

Appendix I. Glossary of Terms and Abbreviations & Reference Maps

